"A very good selection, including some of the best work by Norman Shaw, Ernest George, Sir Aston Webb, Basil Champneys, T. E. Colcutt, and others. The book is just the volume to put into the hands of a possible client, and will help young architects to realise that houses may be designed with individual artistic character, whatever their size and cost."—Building News.

Domestic Architecture in England in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries. A selection of Examples Drawn and Photographed for the use of Architects. By Horace Field and Michael Bunney. With Introductions and Notes.

"Messrs. Field and Bunney's book demonstrates how rich England is in dignified small houses. . . . The book is one a young architect should have. It would prove a good influence and prevent his running riot."—Manchester Guardian.

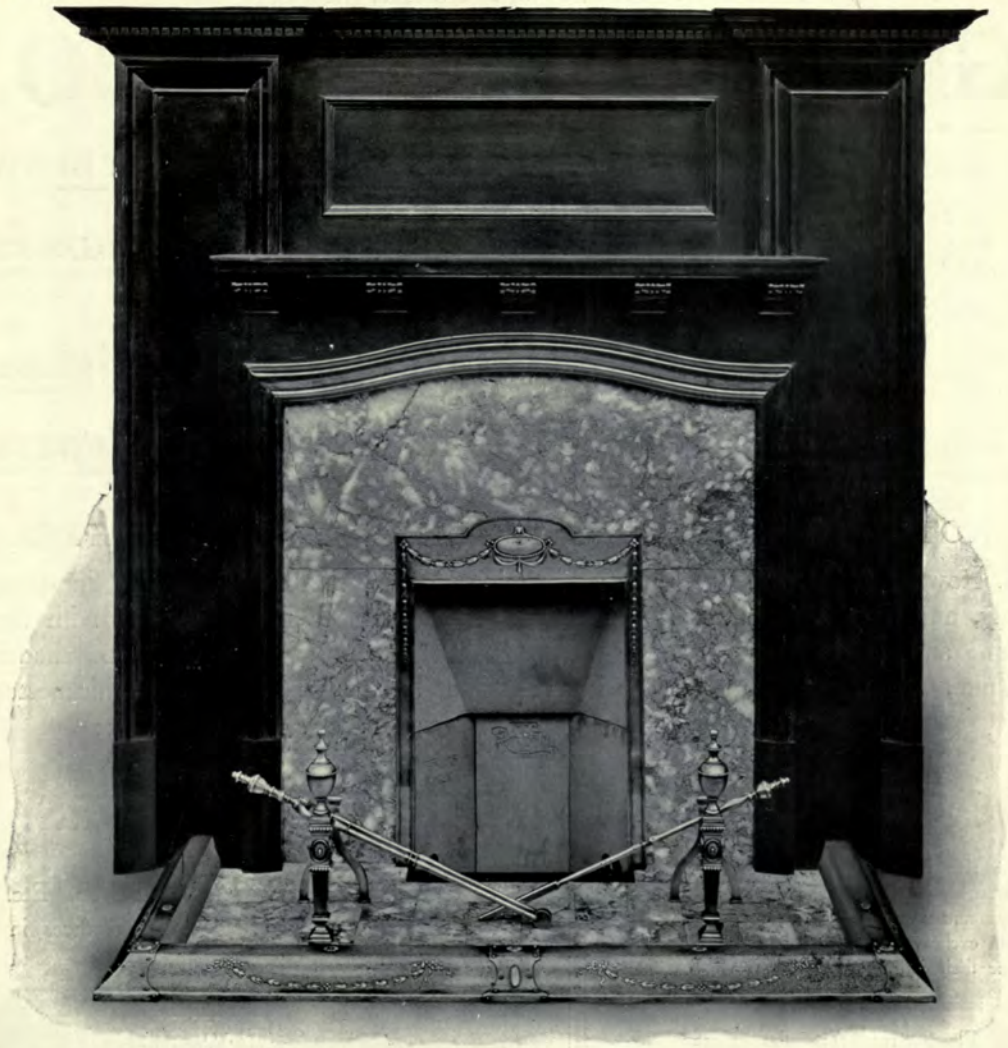
'RATIONAL' PATENT FIREPLACE



Is a fire on the hearth. The hearth is level with the floor, so that the heat from the fire can radiate to the feet of persons using the room, instead of being driven up the chimney, and it allows the floor of the room to be swept in the proper way, that is, towards the fireplace, and thus keep down the dust as much as possible. There is no direct air supply beneath the fire-grid ; the hot-air chamber beneath promotes perfect combustion.
